

Dream It Possible

“We are all in the gutter, but some of us are looking at the stars.” This is one of the most famous quotes from Oscar Wilde a writer who has a really dramatic life. Personally speaking, Wilde was a man who had been chasing his dream all his life. In order to achieve his dreams, ~~what he what~~ he even abandoned his family. Obviously, Wilde was a perfect negative example for chasing one’s a dreams. However, people still respect him because he had a brave heart who-which tried to achieve his goal. I firmly believe Wilde never regretted to chase his dreams in his whole life time because at least he tried. All in all, dream is important for everyone because it is personal, realizable, and it makes people go forward.

You write well, clearly, and creatively—however, it is unclear what you are writing about here. Choose a narrow topic and stick to it. The topic of dreams is too big. The dreams of Oscar Wilde would be interesting, but unless you’ve done your research, that might be difficult. I you are going to speak about yourself, do so earlier. The essay could definitely be about you and your dreams, but if that’s the case, write about it honestly and with passion. Making general statements about other people’s dreams is too impersonal, and you are not an expert on other people’s dreams, only your own.

Commented [KS1]: Great title!

Commented [KS2]: Up until now, I thought your essay would be about Oscar Wilde. If that’s the case, then your thesis should be too. If your essay is just about dreams in general, that’s too big of a topic. If the essay is about you and and your dreams, bring that up sooner.